THE COMMUNITY

Holly Springs is a vibrant community of over 50,000 residents located in the desirable Research Triangle Park region of southwest Wake County, just hours from the mountains of North Carolina as well as numerous coastal beaches. Holly Springs is a full-service municipality with an organization that includes an assortment of departments to serve its residents and business community.

The Town of Holly Springs features an intimate downtown area, great dining and retail options, and is home to a number of global bio-manufacturing corporations. It offers exceptional amenities including: Greenways throughout the Town; Bass Lake is well-stocked, offering fishing and boating; and numerous parks, such as Ting Stadium, home to the Coastal Plain League's Salamanders baseball team.

Holly Springs is consistently rated one of the safest communities in North Carolina. A large reason for this is the commitment and support that our Town administration, elected officials, and citizens provide the police department. As a result, our officers enjoy a strong bond with the community and are well compensated, trained and equipped. In turn, our officers provide the high-level of exceptional service that our residents and business owners expect and deserve.
